The Potomac Valley Audubon Society and the West Virginia Division of Natural Resources are offering these classes as a service to the citizens of the area. Potomac Valley Master Naturalists offers the William Grafton Memorial Scholarship to Master Naturalist students who will use this opportunity to serve the community for many years to come, and for whom the total $300 fee would be an obstacle to participation. Scholarships may be full or partial.

As a Master Naturalist of West Virginia, you will use the skills and knowledge gained as a volunteer to provide stewardship of our natural resources and to promote public understanding through education and service efforts within your local community and the state of WV.

APPLICATION

1. Please explain your commitment to the program, previous volunteer experience, and your need for a scholarship. (Limit 500 words)

2. Have you already sent in a Master Naturalist Program Application form? Yes No
If not, please submit that form with this application (also due January 31, 2023). It is available on the PVMN website, pvmn.org.

I understand that the total fees for the Potomac Valley Master Naturalist program are $300 per student and that I am responsible for paying any balance not covered by any scholarship I may receive. I realize that scholarship recipients are expected to complete their training and volunteer hours within 4 calendar years and remain active in PVMN for at least 2 years after completing the required courses and volunteer service hours. Failure to do so may result in my repayment of scholarship funds.
